EU BUSINESS SCHOOL'S MBA NAMED #2 IN SPAIN BY FORBES

- EU Business School's MBA program is ranked #2 in Spain in Forbes Magazine's 2026 MBA rankings.
- The MBA program excelled in internationalization and outstanding employment outcomes, a testament to EU Business School's pioneering approach to fostering career-ready graduates with a global mindset.

EU Business School (EU) is proud to announce that its MBA program has been named #2 in Spain by distinguished business publication Forbes Magazine in its highly regarded annual rankings. This recognition reflects EU's unwavering focus on delivering a first-class business education that equips graduates with the career-ready skills and global mindset needed to thrive in an increasingly complex business world.

This ranking underlines EU's future-forward and experiential approach to business education, which blends rigorous academic content with practical, real-world application. Students graduate not only with strong technical knowledge but with the entrepreneurial mindset to lead and innovate. With a student body and teaching faculty representing more than 130 nationalities, the EU experience is inherently international, and all programs are delivered exclusively in English.

Forbes highlighted EU Business School's strong international focus and its commitment to developing managers with a truly global outlook, noting that the MBA program brings together business management, leadership, strategy, and business development within a diverse and multicultural environment. Forbes also pointed to the program's outstanding employment outcomes. In addition, 90% of EU's faculty are active professionals, ensuring that classroom learning remains firmly grounded in real-world business practice.

Ms. Mireille Messine, CEO of EU Business School, welcomed the news: "Being recognized by Forbes once again as one of Spain's top MBA programs is a source of great pride for our entire community. It is a reflection of the energy and commitment we bring to preparing our graduates for leadership roles in a world that is changing faster than ever before."

Forbes evaluates MBA programs across a rigorous set of criteria, including price and accessibility, educational offering, quality and available resources, research and innovation capacity, professional outcomes, degree of internationalization, and institutional accreditations.
